Part B - Job Family Description

The below profile describes the general nature of work performed at this level as set out in the job family. It is not intended to be a detailed list of all duties and responsibilities which may be required. The role will be further defined by annual objectives, which will be developed with the role holder. The Council reserves the right to review and amend the job families on a regular basis.

Role Purpose including key outputs	Information Officers respond to enquiries from the general public, by providing accurate information, mediated access to services and support in a sensitive and courteous manner, to the quality standards identified for the Contact Centre
Work Context	The role is embedded in the Customer Services Contact Centre. This is a fast paced, high-volume environment which handles a large number of enquiries by telephone and other digital contact channels and is the front door to the majority of council services. Information Officers need to be resilient and have the flexibility and capability to switch between different channels and enquiry types, depending on customer and business requirements. They need to have a strong customer focus, with the ability to think quickly and tease out issues, so that wherever possible enquiries and requests for service are resolved at first point of contact, without needing to refer to specialist teams in other parts of the organisation. They are responsible for delivering a timely, high quality, inclusive, resident focussed experience that meets the needs of our customers and aligns with service and organisational objectives. Many of the calls are regarding complex issues or are from vulnerable, distressed or digitally excluded customers. Information Officers are required to respond courteously and sensitively to diverse questions and resolve enquiries on a wide range of issues whilst maintaining a high level of satisfaction from our customers.

Role Summary	Roles at this level provide a business support service as part of a specific service or service team. They will carry out a range of administrative tasks using knowledge of general office routines and procedures, together with a broad understanding of the department and how the tasks directly support the service or service team. The work is within established processes and procedures and while it may not be subject to direct supervision, guidance is readily available. They will be expected to organise their own workload and set their own priorities within short, e.g. day-to-day or week-to-week timescales, usually reacting to clear deadlines or processes. They support more senior staff by executing the detailed processes in specific aspects of business, financial, communication, facilities and/or HR administration and will be fully versed in all the procedures of their specialism. They may be involved in guiding the work of more junior staff. For some roles, customer service may be the predominant feature, e.g. dealing with a variety of clients in relation to a department's activities. Others may support a group of more senior staff with some of the more routine duties and ensure matters are dealt with appropriately when they are out of the office.
